

Health & Safety

Touchwood Theatre Company is committed to providing a safe environment for its members, volunteers, audiences and others who may be affected by its activities.

The Company takes a reasonable and proportionate approach to health and safety and seeks to identify and manage significant risks associated with rehearsals, productions, performances and other organised activities.

Appropriate risk assessments are carried out for Touchwood activities and are reviewed where circumstances change or where an accident, incident or significant near miss indicates that a review may be required.

For productions and events, venue-specific safety arrangements are considered alongside Touchwood's own activities, with additional checks carried out when necessary.

Members and volunteers are expected to take reasonable care of their own health and safety and that of others, follow relevant safety instructions and report hazards, accidents, incidents or concerns promptly.

Overall oversight of health and safety arrangements rests with the Touchwood Theatre Company Committee, supported by the Company's risk assessment process.

Touchwood's health and safety arrangements are reviewed periodically and updated where appropriate.
